

475 is our goal.

We read about Blessings in a Backpack in the People Magazine article (see link on home page) and watched Diane Sawyer’s moving 20/20 expose on the Lakota Sioux, and knew we HAD TO DO SOMETHING – COULD do something to help! We decided that Blessings in a Backpack would be profoundly helpful to Rockyford School. We called Blessings in a Backpack and talked to staff about options to help this school and learned that all 475 children at the school qualify for their program!

We immediately called the school to tell them of our intention to get the children desperately needed food, and then began our journey to this remote and desolate South Dakota Indian reservation to begin our work. Rockyford’s Principal and School Counselor explained that the children come to school Monday morning extremely HUNGRY. They are fed breakfast and lunch during the school week, but on Friday they go back for seconds and thirds knowing that they will eat very little, if at all, until Monday morning. Everyone agreed and was excited this program would benefit their school.

So our journey begins .....

You can feed one child for 38 weekends of the school year for $80. Together we can make a difference for these children. Please click on the DONATE link on our website home page to give now.
